Consortium des Universités de l'aire Euro-Méditerranéenne et des Pays du Sud (CUEM)

Quick presentation

The « Consortium of Euro-Mediterranean Universities », (CUEM) is a think tank which has a long experience of joint work, within an interdisciplinary, trans-cultural and international environment. Its goal is not to create unconditionally, in the universities of the south, western models and duplicates on the basis of a unilateral visions imposed by the Occident. It is a question to be most attentive with the needs and the aspirations of the south countries.

The members of the Consortium are :

- University of Algiers (Algeria),
- University of Tunis (Tunisia),
- University of An-Najah,
- Naplouse (Palestine),
- Rouen University (France),
- University of Cairo (Egypt),
- University Paris VIII
(France),
- Oassi-IRCSS(Italy),
- Cagliari University (Italy).

The academic campus of the CUEM is situated in Italy, where sessions of training are organized since 2003, within a health and social Italian institution called OASI-IRCSS situated in Troina-Sicily.

This “International and Interdisciplinary Qualifying Training” results from the reflection work enterprise by the CUEM, founded on the interrogation of the dominant categories of thought. It aims at providing to the trainees the theoretical and practical means which make possible the realization of a set of scientific and ethical values and thus allow a change of perceptions, attitudes and politics in Euro-Med. space. The training offers to the learn-actors the capacity to develop projects able to exceed individualism, in order to found, in the long term, equilibrium, peace and the harmony inside their communities.
